

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A painter's mask has an aperture in which is inserted a glass or lens protective shield. The shield has a gasket having an upper edge on which is attached a header arranged in an arc. Projecting from the arc are a number of spaced atomizers which deliver jets of pressurized air over and in front of the shield to deflect falling paint particles and liquid from the shield during a painting operation.